Cultures in Resistance

18 - 20 March 2008

Manchester Metropolitan University, UK

Geoffrey Manton Conference Centre

Keynote speakers

Sara Ahmed Terry Eagleton
Ann Phoenix Slavoj Zizek

The aim of this multidisciplinary conference is to provide a forum for the critique of contemporary cultural practices in all their forms, and to explore the negotiations with agencies of power working to inhibit or redirect those practices.

The conference will bring together researchers, educators, learners, policy-makers and practitioners in the creative and performing arts with a commitment to analyse and challenge both cultural formations and the networks of power working to constrain them. The conference will celebrate the challenge and enrichment brought through cultural and counter-cultural diversity to the arts, philosophy, psychology, education, religion and ethics.

We encourage a range of presentations: papers, posters and workshops, together with work for exhibition and presentations in the visual and performing arts.

The conference will be preceded by workshops on topics related to cultural resistance including reflexivity, urban ethnography, writing, discourse and deconstruction.

Abstracts will be accepted until 15 February.
However please note that spaces for presentations, workshops and symposia are now limited.
